Mrs. Dorothea Holstein, hospitalized since an automobile accident June 26, is shown examining some of the "four bushels" of mail she has received since the accident. Her greatest ambition now, she said, is to be able to walk again. (Star Staff Photo.)

Mrs. Holstein Winning Battle:

4-H LEADER, CONVALESCING, FINDS FRIENDSHIP REPAID

By ELLIS RALL
Star Staff Writer

A Lincoln woman who has enriched the lives of 4-H clubbers over Nebraska is now being repaid by grateful friends and 4-H club youths.

She is Mrs. Dorothea Holstein of 1222 So. 14th. Injured critically in an auto accident June 26 near Alliance, the assistant state 4-H club leader is slowly winning the battle to regain her health.

Guy R. Davis, well-known assistant state 4-H club leader and pioneer in the Nebraska 4-H movement, was killed in the accident. Davis and Mrs. Holstein were returning to his University of Nebraska post after delivering four farm youth exchange students to northwest Nebraska for placement on farms and stopping at the 4-H Club Camp at Chadron.

The whole state is backing the herculean effort of Mrs. Holstein, who has been hospitalized since the accident.

That is apparent by the tremendous volume of cards, notes, presents and flowers she has received at her hospital room at Lincoln General Hospital. She was transferred to Lincoln General Oct. 9 after being hospitalized at Alliance about three months.

"My hobby is to get well right now," she said, "and my greatest desire is to walk again."

With the aid of the good care at the hospital from the nurses and doctors she said she will be walking again.

Kept Abreast

Mrs. Holstein has been able to keep abreast of 4-H happenings in the state. Her office, she said, keeps her informed.

She said she hadn't realized how many friends she had until the mail started arriving.

"I think people are wonderful and certainly have cheered me up along the way," she commented. Since June 26, Mrs. Holstein said she had received an average of between 8 and 10 cards daily—in all, a total of "four bushels" of mail.

When asked why she measured the mail in bushels, she quipped that since things are measured on the farm by bushels and since she was a farm girl, that was the logical way to measure.

Her flowers, which were in the room when the reporter visited her, were on chairs, on a large shelf and overlapped until the floor of a corner of the room was completely covered by them.

She has received presents from the University 4-H Club on Ag campus, one which she serves as sponsor, from the county agents in her 4-H district, and from other 4-H clubbers and friends.

Her recovery has been slow, but steady. With the aid of pulleys rigged to her bed she can now move her legs—a feat of which both she and the nurses are proud.

Lincoln Nurse Killed

Crash Injures U Of N Student

Marilyn Rose Stelling, 22, a nurse and technician at Lincoln General Hospital, was killed Sunday noon in a one-car accident one and a half miles south of Wahoo on Highway 77.

Miss Stelling was a passenger in the car driven by Harry J. Giesselman Jr. of Arlington. Giesselman, 25, a student at the University of Nebraska, was taken to Saunders County Community Hospital by the Wahoo Fire department First Aid Squad. He suffered a compression fracture of the vertebrae, shock and minor lacerations of the face and hands. The hospital reported his condition as "good."

The deputy sheriff said Giesselman was attempting to pass a car when his car hit a shoulder and rolled over, landing on its top. Miss Stelling was thrown from the car.

Miss Stelling was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Stelling, 4962 So. 48th St., Omaha. Stelling is vice president of the Omaha National Bank. She was returning from her home at the time of the accident.

Miss Stelling resided at 920 So. 16th in Lincoln.

Four Teenagers Jailed On Assault

Police booked four youths on open charges in connection with an assault on 26-year-old Levi Smith of 2100 Vine. The incident occurred early Sunday morning.

Police said two boys came to Smith's room wearing white scarves tied over their faces and grabbed the boy. They stuffed a handkerchief down Smith's throat to keep him from yelling for help and hit him in the stomach and knocked him out, police said.

Police said one of the boys picked up a razor blade on a chest of drawers and threatened to cut Smith. The four youths jailed were ages 16, 17, 18 and 19. Police are investigating the cause of the assault.

Temperatures were to dip to near cold wave proportions in the west and central by Tuesday. Monday night, the extreme eastern section of the state was to get showers.

Tuesday's forecast calls for snow, northerly winds and much colder in the west and north and colder with rain or snow in the southeastern portion. High Monday was expected to reach 40 northwest and in the 60's southeast.

Margaret, Peter Spend Day Romancing By Fire

UCKFIELD, England (AP)—Princess Margaret, smiling, gay and sometimes singing, romanced by the fireside with Peter Townsend Sunday night in a moonlit mansion cut off from the cares of the world.

Townsend, in contrast to the 25-year-old princess, looked worried and preoccupied, according to an informant inside their close-guarded country retreat.

Outside, all Britain waited tense and impatient for official word on the future of the trusting couple's romance, which has shaken the monarchy and the state church.

Skips Church

The princess skipped morning church—usually a must for British royalty—to stay with her divorced war hero. The informant said they spent most of this crisp fall Sunday alone in the lounge with a roaring fire to ward off the drafts inseparable from country house life in England.

Soft music filled the spacious room from a phonograph playing Margaret's favorites—French love songs and hits from American musicals. As evening came on the light of a brilliant full moon

Hershey Bank Is Robbed

Money In Cabinet During Safe Repair

HERSHEY, Neb. (AP)—The Bank of Hershey was broken into early Sunday and Lincoln County Sheriff George Howard said about $1,139.77 was taken.

The sheriff called it "no run of the mill bank job," but more like "a break-in." First indications were that wasn't tied in with the armed robbery of $2,800 from the Boelus State Bank Saturday.

Sheriff Howard said the money was being kept in a metal cabinet at the bank while the big safe was being repaired. It was from the cabinet that the burglar or burglars obtained the money.

They, however, overlooked about $300 or $400, which sheriff Howard said was found in the cabinet later.

Howard said admission to the bank was gained by prying a lock off a rear door, which faces an alley.

The break-in was discovered Sunday morning when a Hershey resident noticed the back door of the bank slightly open.

Israel's Worry Is Aired

Dulles Confers With Molotov

GENEVA (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles conferred Sunday with Russian and Israeli statesmen in a two-way effort to douse flashpoints of possible war in the Middle East.

Dulles protested to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov against Soviet bloc arms sales to Egypt on the ground they might touch off new Arab-Israeli fighting. He emerged from the hour-long meeting apparently with no assurance that the Red arms flow will be halted.

The American next sought to calm the fears of Premier Moshe Sharett that Israel will be left alone and unaided to face Egyptians reinforced by Red arms. Without committing the United States, Dulles promised to consider sympathetically any precise requests for arms that Israel might make for normal defense needs.

Quick Talks

The secretary meantime arranged for quick conferences later with the heads of two European governments vitally concerned in Mideastern stability. He flies Tuesday to Madrid for talks with Spain's Generalissimo Francisco Franco and five days later to Brioni to meet Yugoslav President Tito. Soviet threats and thrusts in the Mediterranean area doubtless will be discussed.

Sharett told reporters after meeting Dulles he gathered the United States still has to decide just how to deal with the Middle East situation. He said he left Dulles "with no doubt or misconception" about Israeli views on Egypt's arms program.

Menaced

"Israel considers her very existence now menaced by this massive increase of strength falling to her sharpest and most pronounced enemy," Sharett said.

The United States, Britain and France are known to be considering another reaffirmation of their 1950 promise to act against any Mideastern aggressor. They also undertook then to maintain a military power balance between Israel and the Arabs.

Meantime, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi flew in to nearby Zurich on his way home to Cairo from the United Nations meeting in New York. He canceled plans to stop over in Geneva to see the Big Four.

DANCING BEFORE TRAGEDY

William Woodward Jr. and his wife, Ann, made a smiling couple on the dance floor at a New York supper club party just a few days before Woodward was killed when, according to authorities, Mrs. Woodward mistook her husband for a prowler and fired two shotgun blasts at his moving figure. (AP Wirephoto.)

Mrs. Woodward Was A Kansas 'Cinderella'

. . . And Beautiful Model

NEW YORK (INS)—The marriage in 1943 of socialite sportsman William Woodward Jr., then a Navy ensign, and Miss Ann Eden Crowell, a small-town Kansas lass just denting the radio and modeling fields, was the "Cinderella" story of that war-torn era.

But of all her rags-to-riches sisters the beautiful blonde Mrs. Woodward has made the most successful conquests of high society. Perhaps, friends say, it was because of those same qualities first recognized by the tall, handsome son of one of America's foremost blue-blood families.

Felt Comfortable

"One reason I married her," the shy, retiring Woodward often said, "was because she was the only woman in whose company I really felt comfortable."

A graduate of Groton School and Harvard, like his illustrious banker-sportsman father, young Woodward was in the Navy, stationed out in Tacoma, Wash., when the social register crowd here was stunned with his announcement that he intended to wed the young woman from tiny Pittsburg, Kan., who had modeled her way into some minor radio programs.

Within a week of the announcement, they were wed in Tacoma, with the elder Woodward in attendance.

Record Tiger

On her first big-game hunting trip with him to India shortly after their marriage, Mrs. Woodward became a rabid hunter and, last winter, on a trip to central India and the jungles of Assam, she bagged two tigers and two leopards—one of the tigers measuring 10 feet, thought to be a record for women.

Early this year, Mrs. Woodward

Church College Builds Wholesome Student Lives

LINCOLN Star Special

DILLER, Neb. — The Rev. Laurence R. Davis, district superintendent of the Lincoln district of the Methodist Church in a Protestant Reformation service address at Diller told the group of the church's function in relation to its colleges.

"The church college at its best," he said, "is a living fellowship of students and faculty members. The church college seeks to assist students in the art of getting along well with other people, in addition to giving them technical training."

"The church college," he added, "seeks to give a broad, religious interpretation of life and seeks to lead students into a wholesome life that is fundamentally religious."

Four churches, representing three denominations, took part in the ceremonies at the Diller Community Opera House. It was sponsored by St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church, Congregational Church, and Methodist Church, all of Diller.

Police Call It Mishap

Wm. Woodward N.Y. Sportsman

OYSTER BAY, N. Y. (AP)—William Woodward Jr., 35, wealthy young socialite owner of the race-horse Nashua, was killed by a shotgun fired by his wife early Sunday. She said she thought he was a prowler.

When she switched on a light and discovered what she had done, Mrs. Ann Woodward, 32, picked up the telephone and screamed and sobbed hysterically for help.

Police arrived at the Woodward's sprawling 15-room mansion to find the striking blonde wife kneeling by the nude body of her husband.

'Likely Accidental'

The death was listed as "accidental pending further investigation" by Nassau County Dist. Atty. Frank Gulotta. County Chief of Detectives Stuyvesant Pinnell said, "It was more likely accidental than homicide."

The young couple had been married 12 years, had bagged tigers and other big game in India together, and had become ardent horse enthusiasts when Woodward inherited the famous Belair stables from his banker father in 1953.

Their horse, Nashua, bested Swaps, the winner of the Kentucky Derby this year, in a $100,000 match race at Chicago Aug. 31.

After Mrs. Woodward was given a sedative she was questioned by authorities briefly before being taken by ambulance to a New York hospital. They pieced together this story:

The Story

The Woodwards had spent the evening at a party for the Duchess of Windsor, given by Mrs. George F. Baker at a nearby estate.

At the party they talked about a prowler who had been breaking into houses along the exclusive estate-dotted North Shore of Long Island, and apparently had made two attempts on the Woodward home.

They returned home at 1 a.m. and searched the rambling French Provincial house to make sure a prowler had not broken in.

Then they went to bed in separate bedrooms, across a hall from each other on the ground floor of the building. Each kept a gun at hand, Woodward a pistol and Mrs. Woodward a shotgun.

Poodle Barked

About 3 a.m. Mrs. Woodward was awakened by the barking of her gray toy poodle. She got up and grabbed the shotgun.

In the hall she thought she saw a movement, and fired. The blast hit her husband in the right side of the head. He was just inside the doorway of his bedroom.

He fell dead and a second charge splintered the woodwork of the door.

"Almost immediately, I realized it was my husband," Gulotta said the weeping wife told him. "I ran to him and fell on the floor beside him."

Childrer Unaware

The couple's two children, William III, 10, and James, 8, slept through the shooting. They were taken to their grandmother's house in New York without being told of their father's death.

Oyster Bay is about 30 miles from New York.

Detectives questioned many of the 58 guests who had attended the party. Pinnell said:

"If we find it necessary to resolve this matter to talk with the Duchess of Windsor we will do so."

He added that from all he could learn there was no discord between the Woodwards and "they were in love."

Ex-Model

Mrs. Woodward is a beautiful former model. A photograph of her had been printed in a color section of a New York Sunday newspaper only a few hours before the tragedy.

Pinnell said the prowler had been active in the area for some time and police had been on the alert for him.

Ike's Economic Adviser Sees Boom 'Slow-Down'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gabriel Hauge predicted Sunday night a slight increase in the cost of living in the year ahead and a slowing down in this year's "remarkable" rate of industrial growth.

Hauge, economic adviser to President Eisenhower, cautioned that he couldn't precisely "see around the economic corner." But, he said, "I sense in the present situation a great deal of strength that certainly is going to persist well into next year."

"There is an attitude of confidence about the future," he said, "but it is a matter we will have to continue to watch in the months ahead, as we have in the past."

Hauge said he expected both increases and decreases in various items in the cost of living in the year ahead, just as in the past. He summed it up in these words:

Small Change

"I suppose in the months ahead the same diverse movements are going to proceed and I would expect that the change would be very small in either direction. . . . The pressures perhaps are on the side of the upward movement."

Hauge said industrial production

Russian Embassy To Hold October Revolution Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new look among the Russians has extended to the pomp and glitter of Washington's traditional fall social season.

Invitations have gone out for a big party at the Russian Embassy here Nov. 7 for the Soviet's annual October Revolution celebration.

For the first time since World War II, the Soviets held a formal "black tie" affair last Thursday night and opened wide the doors of the stately old Washington mansion which is their embassy. It was a buffet reception for touring Soviet pianist Emil Gilels.

Vice President and Mrs. Nixon were invited but declined. They were in New York. Associate Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William O. Douglas were the highest ranking U.S. couple among the official visitors. Douglas toured Russia last summer.

Rita Will Divorce Crooner Haymes; Not Remarry Aly

PARIS (AP)—Rita Hayworth plans to divorce singer Dick Haymes but is not thinking of remarrying Prince Aly Khan, the American film star's secretary said Sunday.

She told a reporter she had no idea when the divorce proceedings would be started.

In Chicago, Haymes said Rita's attorneys had advised him she was filing suit for divorce but he, too, did not know when.

"My only desire," he said, "is to see Rita happy."

Vet Benefits Cut Necessity Still Unknown

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of President Eisenhower's Commission on Veterans' Pensions, said Sunday it's too early to say if cuts in veteran benefits will be recommended.

Bradley said in an interview that the commission is still engaged in gathering data.

President Eisenhower, when he appointed Bradley last March, told him "to examine the entire structure, scope and philosophy of our veterans' benefit laws in relation to each other and to other government programs."

Bradley declined to say when the Commission will make its report to the President.

He said it was originally scheduled to report on Nov. 1, but that it has been necessary to get an extension.

"I certainly can say," he said, "that none of us on the Commission has made up his mind on what sort of recommendations we'll make to the President. We are still investigating, studying and gathering information which we can use to decide on the recommendations."

Lincoln Rates High In Traffic Safety

CHICAGO (AP)—Lincoln and Sioux City, Ia., are listed as two of the three top cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population class with the lowest traffic death rate during the last nine months.

Lincoln has an 0.3 deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles. Sioux City had none.

The report was issued by the National Safety Council Sunday. In September, the Council report said, 3,530 persons died in traffic accidents. This was the greatest number in September since 1941 when 3,746 were killed.

For the first eight months of 1955 the report said that traffic mileage ran eight per cent ahead of last year and deaths were up five per cent of last year.

Kansas City, Mo., ranked in the top three low traffic death cities in the 350,000 to 500,000 population class with a rating of 1.9 deaths per 10,000 registered vehicles.

has risen 9 per cent, 33 billion dollars, in the past year and "nobody in government would expect" the rate to continue. The increase, he said, was "very much more than normal."

The government, he said, would remain alert to watch for any danger signals in this field and would be ready to use its powers "in a flexible manner" to combat any downward trend.

In a far-ranging discussion of the nation's economy, Hauge made these other points:

Personal Debt

Personal debt—The rate of personal debt has increased substantially but the capacity of consumers to carry it has expanded through greater income. He said the government has acted to slow down the flow of money to banks, was keeping an eye on the situation and he is not personally worried about the rise.

Farmers—The farmer "in return for the prodigious and successful effort he is making in turning out food and fiber is not getting a return for his work that is in line with what other people are getting for their in America today."

Hauge said the government was attempting to reduce surpluses which are depressing farm prices.

Production—Judged by inventories there is no sign of overproduction although, "Never in our history have Americans produced so much, earned so much, spent so much, saved so much, invested so much, built so much." Some industries, he said, are going forward, some are holding their own and some are "receding."

Taxes

Taxes—If the federal budget is balanced and there is a surplus the Eisenhower administration wants to use any surplus to reduce taxes. After the rates are lowered enough to "insure prosperity" any surplus would be used to reduce the debt.

Employment—Automation will not mean unemployment. Hauge said he expected a labor shortage rather than a labor surplus in the years ahead. He added that industry and business, however, "have a tremendous responsibility" to meet the human problem of employees whose skills are outmoded by machines.

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Mamie White Colvin, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union from 1944 to 1953, died Sunday night as she was preparing to address the congregation of the First Methodist Church.

Mrs. Colvin, 73, was at the pulpit when she collapsed from a heart ailment.

She was first vice president of the world WCTU and honorary president of the National WCTU. She was president of the New York State branch for 18 years.

She and her husband, Dr. David Leigh Colvin, came here about a year ago from Evanston, Ill. Dr. Colvin ran for president of the United States in 1935 on a prohibition ticket.

BANDUNG, Indonesia (AP)—Guerrillas from the outlawed Moslem Darul Islam organization launched a series of raids on villages in flood-stricken West Java.

A band of 150 burned 59 homes, a mosque, a school and the town hall at Tjirandjang, near here, and killed a village guard. In Kadudampit, police and soldiers battled another band for an hour, forcing the terrorists to flee, but only after several homes had been set afire. A soldier was killed, a policeman wounded and two terrorists slain.

H. A. Paap of 2815 P told police unidentified parties pushed his car down a steep grade sending it crashing into a cement block basement. Police estimated the damage to the basement at 39th and X at $125 but said the car was not damaged.

Burglary Attempt Fails

Burglars attempted to enter a filling station at 860 No. 27th by tearing a hole in double doors leading to the grease rack, police said. A small hole was made but entrance was not gained, police said.

Members of Cub Scout Den 1, Pack 20, decided to pull a novel Halloween trick, so their mothers, led by Mrs. James McLaughlin, den mother, baked cookies, cakes and candy for the boys. The boys presented the goodies to firemen at the College View station as a treat, instead of themselves asking for "tricks or treats." Tools, Clothes, Accessories Stolen From Three Cars

Police said $194.56 in tools, car accessories and clothing were stolen from three different cars over the weekend.

More than $95 worth of tools were stolen from a trunk of a car owned by Lavern Irmer of 125 West O, police said. Gladys Smith of 2721 No. 48th, told police $11.56 worth of thermostats, a jacket and a car cushion were taken from her car while parked near 3800 So. 14th.

And Police said Wayne Burmood of 1329 No. 68th reported that $58 worth of tools were stolen from his car.

Body Of Lad Missing Over A Year Found

POWERS LAKE, N. D. (AP)—The body of LaVerne Enget, 4, for whom an estimated 3,000 men searched North Dakota prairie land a year ago, was found Sunday in a slough one mile from his farm home.

The body, in 10 inches of water, was discovered by volunteers who met to make "one last search" for the youngster who wandered from his home Oct. 17, 1954.

Sheriff Martin Ryan said he had "no doubt" the body found was that of LaVerne. The boy's father, Robert Enget, identified clothing on the body as that worn by LaVerne the day he disappeared.

Sheriff Ryan and States Atty. Burt Wilson took the body to Minot for examination by a pathologist, who will try to determine if the child drowned or died from some other cause.

Vern Steele, assistant fire chief at Grenora, found the body as he and other volunteers were preparing to pump water from the slough.

He disappeared after awaking from a nap. His father had been preparing to go to a pasture after the cows and Mrs. Enget assumed LaVerne had accompanied his father. But, when Enget returned, he said he had not seen his son.

Ruling Asked On Rides For Handicapped

The Lancaster District Court has been asked for a declaratory judgment on whether a school district must furnish transportation for handicapped children to another district having facilities for their education.

The action was filed against Freeman Decker, state commissioner of education, and Webster County Consolidated School District No. 90 and its board.

Alfred Schutte, Webster County resident, relates in his suit that the defendant district does not have facilities or instructors for handicapped, but educable children and the nearest school with such facilities is Hastings about 35 miles away.

Decker has instructed the district that in his opinion the law does not provide for such transportation costs being furnished by the district, the suit alleges.

Schutte contends that the school statutes provide for the compulsory education of all educable children and for transportation outside the school district.

Also sought is a court ruling on the method of determining that a child is educable, and whether the state commissioner has the authority to overrule the opinion of an examining physician.

Police Checking Pair Of Breakins

An attempted safe burglary at a grocery store and three smashed vending machines in a West O gasoline station were being investigated by Lincoln police.

Hutson's Grocery, 1172 Belmont, was entered through a broken window during the night and an attempt made to enter the safe. The dial was knocked off, the pin punched, and the hinges hammered. Nothing was reported missing.

Three vending machines in the office of Lee's Service Station at 216 West O were robbed of $5. Nothing else was found missing here, police said.

Oil Hauler Case Returned To RR Board By Court

The complaint of a Scottsbluff crude oil hauler against two others was sent back to the Railway Commission by the Supreme Court as not an appealable order.

Earl Houk, doing business as Western Nebraska Transport Service, Scottsbluff, instituted the complaint against W. W. Beckley of Cozad and Burel F. Kinney of Sidney. The complaint was that they were engaging in interstate hauling exceeding their authority.

The matter reached the Supreme Court on appeal of Beckley and Kinney from a Railway Commission denial of their motion to dismiss the action.

Farmers' Net Income Below 1954 Average

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department said Sunday night that in the July-August-September quarter, farmers' net realized income was at an approximate annual figure of $10,300,000,000.

The figure was about 5 per cent less than in the previous quarter year and 10 per cent below the third quarter rate in 1954. It said:

"The decline in realized net income—and a similar decline in net income of farm operators which includes the value of inventory change—was due primarily to lower

World Corn Production Record Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—World corn production in 1955-56 appears likely to set a new record, the Department of Agriculture said Sunday.

It made a preliminary world production forecast of 6,060,000,000 bushels. This would slightly exceed the previous record in 1948 and would be about 10 per cent above 1954-55, it said.

U.S. production this year was estimated at 3,118,000,000 bushels, up from 2,965,000,000 in 1954.

Total U.S. supplies for 1955-56 were estimated at a new high of 4,142,000,000.

Reds Expand Acreage

"Perhaps the most significant development in the world corn situation this year," the department said, "is the great expansion of acreage in the Soviet Union, where corn was formerly a minor crop."

Russian corn acreage, it added, has been officially announced as 44 million, or a four-fold increase over 1954. The department made no estimate of total Russian corn production, but noted that more than half of the acreage had not been harvested by Oct. 1.

The Russians were said to be trying to bolster their forage supply and increase livestock production.

Canadian production was estimated at 29,300,000 bushels, highest level on record.

Mexican production, prior to recent floods there, was estimated at 126 million bushels.

The European harvest was estimated to be 670 million bushels, or 9 per cent above the small 1954 crop.

African production, half of which will not be harvested until 1956, was estimated at 345 million bushels, up only slightly from 1954.

For South America, the forecast was for a total production of 505 million bushels.

Asian production was estimated at 750 million bushels, about the same as in 1954.

Ag Dept. Pessimistic On Wheat Surplus Reduction

... Export Slowdown May Bother

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Department of Agriculture takes a pessimistic view over the possibilities of reducing a billion-bushel U.S. wheat surplus.

It said that with the world wheat production increasing it may be very slow reduction in our carry-over stocks."

A department publication, "The Wheat Situation," said it may be difficult to maintain wheat exports at the 1954-55 level of 274 million bushels because world wheat production is increasing.

Domestic disappearance, it said, is now estimated at around 625 million bushels, while the current crop is estimated at 916 million bushels.

The total for domestic disappearance and exports is 899 million bushels.

The department said the carry-over on July 1, 1955, was 1,021,000,000 bushels, and the July 1, 1956 total may be slightly larger.

Total wheat supplies in the U.S. for the 1955-56 marketing season were estimated at about 1,940,000,000 bushels—3 per cent above last year.

Nevertheless, the department said during the last two years wheat production has been brought into much closer balance with demand.

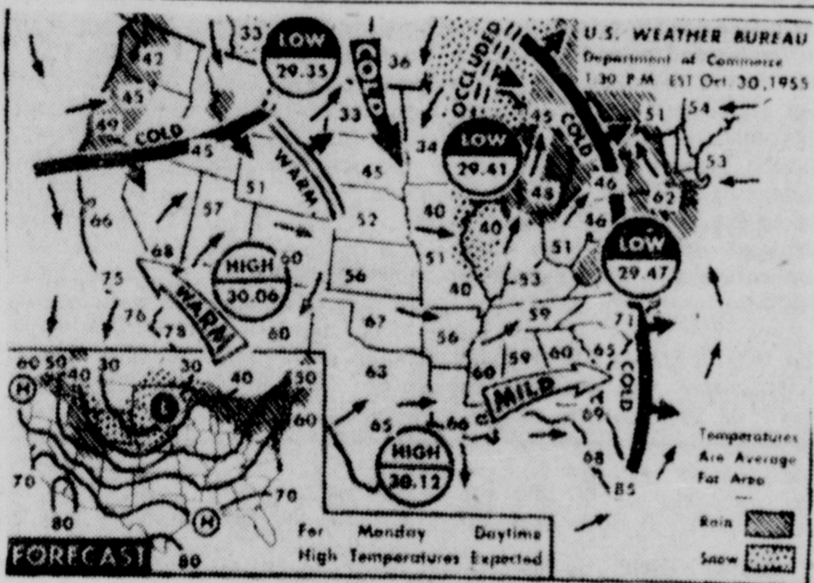

This had been done by reducing acreage and marketing quota programs, as well as by maintaining exports through the aid of government financing.

The department said world wheat production during 1955 is estimated at 7,315,000,000 bushels, or 6 per cent above 1954. Canada is said to have a near record crop and East European production may be up 5 per cent.

Nebraska News

difficult for the U.S. to maintain the present level of wheat exports over the next several years.

"Even if we could maintain exports at this level," the department said, "the production from the minimum allotment of 55 million acres would, with average weather conditions, result in an annual production almost equal to total disappearance (consumption.) This, of course, would permit only a

Lone Bandit Takes $2,800 At Boelus

BOELUS, Neb. — A lone bandit who took $2,800 in a holdup at the Boelus State Bank Saturday still is being sought.

The man, said to be about 30, stuck a pistol in the face of Kermit Erickson, cashier of the bank, and ordered him to fill up a shaving kit he shoved in front of him.

He escaped in a 1955 blue Ford with a white top. The car bore a Hall County license plate and is thought to be one reported stolen from Grand Island Oct. 11.

Howard County Sheriff Dan Schenck said roadblocks were set up immediately and a plane was sent up Sunday morning to search the countryside, but no trace of the bandit was found.

Townpeople reported seeing the man around for about a week and a half before the hold-up.

Residents had also seen the car Saturday morning, but paid no attention because of the hunting season.

With Mr. Erickson at the time of the robbery were his father, Harry Erickson, president of the bank, and Mrs. Kermit Erickson.

A Man With Imagination

Perhaps there were some who laughed when Albert Keffler, a farmer of Sturgis, South Dakota, told the visiting Senate Agriculture committee what to do with the government's surplus grain and the farm problem in general. Perhaps they should have turned thoughtful instead.

Keffler provided the committee's study with a novel solution. He said in effect: take the government grain out of the country. Store it in the frozen north where it will not deteriorate. Stockpile it there against the day of need. Forget it as far as presently trying to get it somehow into the hands of consumers in competition with the farmer.

† Fantastic? All new ideas seem so and many are. But Farmer Keffler should not be laughed out of the meeting. He is no crazier than those who insist that at least a year's crop should remain on the farm as an ever-normal granary for the producer. And he may be lots snarlier than the rest of us who continue to cling to old ideas that won't work, just because they are established.

The nation for some time has been stockpiling critical materials—metals that spell military security. It is an accepted idea. It has not been accepted to grain because of its deteriorating property where we live. But it cannot be gainedaid that food perhaps will determine security more than weapons. That is the lesson of history. Who will say that the South Dakota farmer is right, but who can prove that he has not contributed an obvious truth toward a solution of a problem that the nation's headman, Secretary Benson, is doing so poorly with in an unimaginative way. Let the suggestion be investigated with an open mind before it is dismissed.

Dexheimer's Encouraging Words

It was encouraging to Nebraska to hear Wilbur A. Dexheimer, U. S. commissioner of Reclamation, tell those in the McCook area that he foresaw no difficulty in obtaining the initial appropriations for the proposed Red Willow dam.

Dexheimer gave the assurance to a group of members of the Republican Valley Reclamation Association. He was making an on-the-spot study of the Red Willow project after moving westward from the National Reclamation Association convention here.

The Red Willow reservoir, when completed, will bring many more acres of fertile but semi-arid land into maximum production. It calls attention to the already extensive flood control and reclamation program along the Republican river and its tributaries. Just as the earlier Platte Valley and Tri-County development, the Republican valley is adding greatly to Nebraska's annual income and represents in vision and effect a major constructive piece of citizenship on the part of the leaders of southwest Nebraska for the improvement of their area and for the development of Nebraska.

It is the pioneering and teaching of the west

Stupid Question: Stupid Answer

Nebraskans will agree, we believe, that when someone asks the attorney general a stupid question, it is no more than fair for the attorney general to supply them with a stupid answer.

Sen. Amos Morrison of Mitchell, who for some reason known only to himself seems to have whipped a white-hot concern for Nebraska's public power districts, asked the attorney general whether the development of public power is an obligation of the state of Nebraska. By and large, it was a rather stupid question that Sen. Morrison might very well have answered without bothering the attorney general, usually a rather

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader in the Senate, had some kind words for Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson on the closing day of the week. Mr. Benson, Sen. Knowland said, is a sincere, conscientious man. Out on the farm, the disposition may be to reply: "So what?"

★ We have no recollection in recent years of any administration that has undertaken to cash in more on good intentions and good motives. Secretary McKay is a dedicated man. Secretary Benson is a dedicated man. Secretary Wilson is a dedicated man. So it runs down the list—each one a dedicated man, playing his part on Ike's team. We'll go on one further. They are not only dedicated men, but their predecessors were dedicated men. We doubt that any cabinet member of recent years—if at any time—deliberately courted criticism or a record of incompetence. It isn't just a part of human behavior for anyone either in the Eisenhower cabinet—anyone serving under Harry Truman or the late F.D.R.—to go out of his way to court failure or infamy. That isn't the story of American public life. Quite to the contrary, we have the feeling that the average public servant undertakes to perform the very best job of which he is capable.

★ In Mr. Benson's case, it is not a question whether he is sincere, or whether he is conscientious. That much can be taken for granted, and if it cannot be conceded that Mr. Benson measures up on both counts, then he has no place in American public life. Mr. Benson is in the headlines today only because the farmer is in real trouble. We think Mr. Benson's greatest weakness grows out of the fact that he seems to have very little understanding of one phase of agriculture—namely, that it is no less on the scale of mass production today than industry itself.

★ There is one question troubling the farmers not only in the case of Mr. Benson but in connection with the President himself. What about the promise of price supports on the basis of 90 per cent of parity? The farmers who heard the President speak in the early fall of 1952 think they had every reason to believe the administration would continue the price support program on the basis of 90 per cent of parity. That promise becomes more important so long as the farmers' economic position continues to deteriorate. A continuing decline in farm income will focus that pledge sharply. But any firming up of farm commodity prices over a substantial period of time will do a great deal to wipe out the sting of the secretary of agriculture's determination to adhere to elastic supports.

★ Mr. Benson says he is not going to abandon his program of elastic price supports. There have been so many shifts in recent days that in this as well as in other matters it has become the course of wisdom to wait and see.

The New Way

The young Californian, discharged by a bank, who in turn flew his airplane into the institution's front window added something to the world's sum total of knowledge on a new way to do something. He made a run on the bank all right. But we believe the method will not catch on. The rest of us still prefer to do it on foot.

and central Nebraska regions that has given the state as a whole a new conception of managed water—a lesson now well understood in eastern Nebraska, but still to be fully carried out. Nebraska is preparing for and will ultimately achieve diversification, but it will never get away from the prime basis of its economy which is agriculture. And when one speaks of that the matter of ever-normal production is paramount.

In moist eastern Nebraska it was an economically tragic summer because nature did not act according to man's planning and the rains did not fall when they were most needed, albeit there was more than sufficient rainfall, if conserved and managed, to have averted the late summer losses of corn and small grain.

As the McCook region looks forward to federal aid for an additional venture in managed moisture, eastern Nebraska can add up the losses from corn that should have been and wasn't and compute the huge size of the subsidy it could have represented in gathering and controlling the water that got away. A vanishing corn crop of some $150 million is a terrific price for delaying doing that which ultimately must be done.

busy man. But since he did bother him, he got exactly what he asked for—a stupid answer in return.

"There is nothing in the constitution making such development (public power) an obligation of the state," the attorney general ruled. "But at the same time, there is nothing in the constitution which would prevent such development of public power from being an obligation of the state."

Now, if there are any doubts left in Mr. Morrison's mind, he might play that a couple of times on his piccolo and come to the conclusion that in certain circumstances, the answer is "yes"—in other circumstances, the answer is "no."

"Therefore," the learned attorney general concluded, "it is purely a question of policy to be decided by the people or their Legislature whether or not it shall be an obligation of the state."

If it will be of any assistance to Sen. Morrison sorely plagued as he seems to be, Nebraska's original constitution was a product of the seventies. If our memory does not betray us, there were very few electric plants, private or public, in this state at that time, very few air-conditioners, very few electric washers, very few cleaners and very few percolators. Perhaps the senator has for often that Nebraska's first constitution preceded its first bathtub and indoor plumbing. Now, Sen. Morrison's curiosity should move him ahead to 1920, when Nebraska's constitution was given a thorough revision. All we know is what we heard and what we read at that time. We were told that no new subject matter was injected into the constitution of 1920.

Then along came the 1930's and the adoption of what is known as Senate File 310. Senate File 310 is the real foundation of Nebraska's public power districts. It contains a provision, Sen. Morrison should be informed, dedicating all of the facilities created under its provisions to perpetual public use. That might without imposing too severe a strain on the mind project what could be said to have been legislative sanctions for public power in Nebraska.

Again, if the answer to Sen. Morrison's question is stupid, so is the question itself.

Just Between Us

Venturing into the pure field of neighborliness, where never is heard the political word, it was satisfying to hear that President Eisenhower is daily getting better and better, and also that he has a real tricky pair of red pajamas embroidered with gold stars and a message to all saying, "Much better, thanks." It shows that Ike is not only convalescing nicely, but that his sense of humor was not involved in his coronary troubles. It sailed right through, hitting on all six.

Back of it, too, is a public gratefulness that science can do much for ailing hearts and as rapidly as progress permits will do much more.

U.S. Buys Coal From Soviet Area

WASHINGTON — It's not supposed to be revealed until public hearing, but Senate investigators have uncovered information that "American taxpayers' dollars are being used to purchase coal from iron curtain countries while our American mines are shut down and our American miners out of work."

They have made this finding in a confidential report to Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, chairman of the Senate Coal Subcommittee. Senate investigators also charge that government bureaucrats have spent $34,200,000 of the taxpayers' money for coal merely on the authorization of a New York Times story. A report in the Times that the government was to buy coal was the only authorization the international co-operation administration had for buying coal.

Purpose of the Senate investigation was to discover what had happened to the president's emergency coal purchase program to relieve unemployment in distressed coal fields. On the eve of the 1954 Congressional elections, President Eisenhower authorized spending $150,000,000 for 10,000,000 tons of coal.

Senate probes found that the administration had quietly abandoned this program last month after purchasing only 1,130,000 tons.

"Thus," their confidential report states, "in a full year, ICA was able to achieve about 12 1/2 per cent of its announced purchase goal at an expenditure of more than 25 per cent of its announced budget."

What really shocked the investigators, however, was the fact that tax dollars are being used to purchase coal from behind the Iron Curtain.

Fred G. Aandahl, the assistant secretary of Interior in charge of water and power, made an amazingly frank admission to the Government Operations Committee the other day that the Interior department's water-power policies were pro-big business.

Aandahl was testifying in defense of a license given the Georgia Power Company in preference to rural electric co-ops, when Congressman William Dawson (D-Ill) interrupted.

"The Georgia Power Company and the Southern Power Company, if there ever was a monopoly, that is a monopoly," he said. "But the TVA is socialist to you. In other words, you are only interested in big business."

"That is entirely correct, Mr. Congressman," replied the assistant secretary of Interior.

LIFTING IRON CURTAIN

Congratulations to Congressman Frank Thompson, Jr., Democrat of New Jersey, for helping break down the Iron Curtain. In line with suggestions offered by this column and officially proposed by Ike at Geneva, Thompson has urged legislation to give government help to private groups wishing to arrange exchange visits with Soviet artists, writers, athletes, etc. Chief responsibility would be on private initiative, with Uncle Sam merely greasing the wheels.

Thompson has also proposed a Federal Advisory Commission on the arts, to encourage more and better output by American painters, composers, authors, playwrights, and to promote appreciation by Americans of their own native culture. Thompson figures the U.S. can't win foreign respect until it respects itself.

On The Deterioration Of A Faithful Friend

When our son, Lee, came home to report that Rosamund had lost her oil filter cap in the middle of the town's main intersection while she was creeping along beside a traffic policeman, it was plain to be seen that a campaign was under way.

Lee's opinion of Rosamund, which is the name of our automobile, is not high. It is the younger generation's intolerance for the older, finer things of life. From him, it was to be expected. I did not expect Mrs. F. to abet her son's treason, however. She did, though. She came home from shopping that same day and stopped the car in front, where I was making a scientific investigation to determine why our grass blades grow so uniformly, 10 inches apart. She called me and pointed accusingly at Rosamund.

"I think the adhesive tape you used to hold the fenders on is finally losing its strength," she said. "I almost lost one going over that bump down the street." "I did not use adhesive tape on the fenders," I said with dignity. "I used it to keep the horn from rattling."

Seeing that I was going to be stubborn, she dropped the subject for the moment, but she reverted to it at dinner. She made a direct frontal attack. She said, "Don't you think we ought to have something done about Rosamund's front doors? They stick, and I feel so undignified, always climbing over the seat so I can get out the back doors."

This was pure exaggeration, and I told her so. All you have to do is kick the front door in the lower rear corner, and it comes open easily.

"You don't fool me!" I told them all. "I've seen those folders scattered around the house, advertising new cars. A bunch of ingrates, that's what you are. Fair weather friends! After all Rosamund has done for us, I suppose you've forgotten the time she sheltered us, when we were lost in Wyoming, and the time she pulled out of that sand in New Mexico, when we expected to be there for days, living on mesquite beans!"

★ ★ ★ "But dad," Lee said, "that was eight years ago. What's she done lately?"

"Lost her ignition!" Merrilee said. "It was not her ignition," I corrected. "It was her battery housing."

"It made an awful racket, right there outside the church," Mrs. F. said.

"What you people do not realize," I declared, "is that Rosamund has one of the best motors in the state. They don't make motors like that any more."

"That is just what all the mechanics tell us," Mrs. F. interrupted. "Trouble is," Lee added, "motors need bodies and wheels before they're worth much."

"I object!" I shouted. "It didn't do much good. Tomorrow we're looking at new automobiles." (Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate)

Geneva Promises Trial Of Patience

GENEVA — The second round at Geneva promises to be not so much a test of whether a peace can be concluded with the Soviet Union as a trial of the patience, the persistence and the resourcefulness of the West in this newest encounter with the East.

"Russia wants peace but a peace on her own terms, and those terms, which mean the dismantling of the North Atlantic Alliance, are wholly unacceptable to the West. The goal of America, France and Great Britain is, therefore, to demonstrate to the world that they are willing to go a long way to meet Russia's demands for security if only the Russians will yield a little on the reunification of Germany, which the West considers essential to lasting peace."

In this context it is likely to develop quickly into a propaganda contest, resembling not so much the determined sweetness and light of last summer and the summit conference as the long struggle between East and West that took place in Berlin in the winter of 1954.

This does not mean that it will end with the two sides facing each other, with drawn bayonets across opposed positions. The West is saying that if only the Russians will agree in principle to the need to reunify Germany on the basis of free elections, then the problem can be passed on at the end of the conference to working groups that will eventually translate the principles into practical steps to be approved at a later conference by the four foreign ministers.

★ ★ ★ This hopeful tone may be partly a reflection of the necessities of politics back home. Vice President Nixon, in his speech to the New York Herald Tribune Forum, made it clear that Secretary of State Dulles was going to Geneva to advance one stage further the peace that President Eisenhower and, incidentally, the Republican Party are laboring to bring to suffering humanity.

This puts Dulles in a somewhat awkward position. If Geneva No. 2 does not advance the cause of peace but retards it, where will the blame lie? Obviously, on Mr. Dulles for nullifying the splendid beginning made by the President in July. Without the magic name of Eisenhower at the head of the Republican ticket the slogan of peace and prosperity becomes an even more urgent necessity.

The draft of a security treaty, including a reunified Germany, put before the conference by the western Big Three is the opening gun in the propaganda contest. With its five phases progressively tightening the guarantees for a free Germany, with arms supervision and control, it is meant to answer all the fears that Moscow alleges as the reason for opposing the reunion of the two halves of divided Germany. BILL DOBLER At City Hall

Three Bitter Pills For Builders

Eldrich Lovelace of Harland Bartholomew & Associates, St. Louis, Mo., city planners for Lincoln, gave out a little medicine last week that some Lincoln builders will find awfully hard to swallow.

Bill Dobler

Lovelace recommended a three-point program for city adoption in dealing with plats of new subdivisions proposed for annexation to the city. He called for the developers of such areas to finance their own special improvements, to dedicate a part of each such development to school and park activity and to pay a higher price for processing their proposals through the city government.

Quite naturally, it would not be expected that builders who go in for such developments would be in favor of Lovelace's proposals. For specialists such as paving, the builders would have to invest their own money rather than having the city finance the work and assess the cost back against abutting property. This would relieve the city of the risk of losing its money on assessments that are never paid and cannot be recovered from the value of the land involved.

On the second point, the builder could choose between the dedication of 7 1/2 per cent of the land in his plat to the city for park and school purposes or the contribution in cash of an amount equal to the value of 7 1/2 per cent of the land. Obviously there would be no enthusiasm among builders for this proposal.

★ ★ ★ The third point, a higher filing fee for plats, will probably be opposed by the builders also but possibly not so vigorously as the first two items. Lovelace recommends that the present $5 filing fee be increased to $25 plus $1 for each lot in the subdivision. Thus, a subdivision of 100 lots would cost $125 for processing through the city, not a staggering amount but there is little doubt the builders would just as soon see the present fee retained.

While there are both pros and cons on these proposals, at least two of them seem to have considerable merit. The city has always financed special improvements but there is actually little reasonable basis for this in new subdivisions. Why should the city have to finance a venture of some builder whose only interest is to make a profit for himself?

The higher filing fee also has some strong points. Lincoln's planning engineer, Douglas Brogren, spends a large part of his time working out street patterns, drainage systems and other essential parts of new subdivisions. The $5 fee comes nowhere near paying the actual cost of the service rendered the developer by the city.

Possibly the weakest of Lovelace's recommendations was the one for dedication of land for school and park purposes.

It, of course, would be a fine thing for all developers to recognize the problems of the city and school district in obtaining needed property and to help out with a donation of land or cash. However, these things are accepted governmental responsibilities and it seems a little unfair to ask private citizens to shoulder a public load.

★ ★ ★ A Bethany businessman has reported that some of the citizens of that community were quite disturbed over the fact that city officials have failed to date to approve the removal of the center islands in 66th from Starr to X.

While purely guesswork, these people would probably be even more disturbed if they knew of their chances of getting the island removed this year.

The job probably would be done if any funds were left over near the end of the year but this is highly doubtful. The list of street projects the city has is already about twice or three times as big as the amount of money available.

★ ★ ★ After receiving the recommendations of Sidewalk Inspector Michael Bourke on construction of new walks Mayor Clark Jeary complimented Bourke with the statement, "You have given the Council exactly what it asked for." The remark drew some laughs when it automatically presented the question of what the Council actually did ask for.

They asked for sidewalk recommendations but they were also unconsciously "asking for" a few headaches. Already, complaints have been received against the construction of sidewalks and Monday's Council meeting promises to be a lively affair with the objectors making themselves heard and understood.

★ ★ ★ People living near the Harrison St. lake at 16th, if they are late sleepers, may be roused from their beds Monday morning to the tune of a big air hammer. The city now has everything ready to begin the big job of breaking up the giant boulders around the lake into smaller stones for placement around the banks of the lake.

Special chisels and drills have been obtained for this particular job. Just how successful the drilling operation will be is still uncertain but even with the noise, nearby residents should be happy to see something started in an effort to turn the lake area into the beauty spot for which it was intended.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: On behalf of the committee in charge of arrangements for the convention of the National Reclamation Association I wish to express our sincere appreciation and warm thanks for the excellent news coverage which you, B. R. Rothenberger and your staff accorded to the proceedings and the speakers.

This meeting was one of the most timely and important the organization has ever had. There was an impressive number of high government officials and members of the Congress present for the program.

Soil and water conservation is so vital to the whole nation that every effort must be made to inform our citizens of the basic problems connected with conservation so that they will understand its importance in our national life.

Whose Prosperity?

Blair, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: What a choice, if untender, morsel is being offered our farm folk by the headline: "General Motors To Make A Billion Dollars This Year—Most Ever!"

This, though we Democrats are charged with being un-American, anti-business, left wing smear artists, if we even whisper that under the "Inspiring leadership of Mr. Eisenhower, our nation is being turned over lock, stock and barrel to big business!"

Surely there is a less painful way to equate our economy than to let big industry and big labor get all the "goody" while we "poor little people" out here in the agriculture sections bite our nails and worry about how to make ends meet in the face of continuing headlines ravishing us with trite phrases like: "Nation In Midst of Unparalleled Prosperity!"

More Credit

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Despite all of the efforts of the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Humphrey, the administration halts the flow of the money supply—not more money but more credit—which eventually will boost the national debt to more than $300 billions and the interest thereon to $10 billions a year, trying to buy another election with more credit and more debt.

Will the powers that be look at this proposition from a business standpoint rather than politics? The present debt is staggering and will finally become a menace to the population of this country.

buggy days but not now. Today the big commercial beekeeper takes almost all the honey from the hive. Then he feeds the bees a synthetic "honey." That man-made "honey" costs the beekeeper far less than what he receives for the genuine bee-made honey.

Not for nothing has God's prize product, man, become a money-making wizard. Today profit-loving man gyps even the lowly little hard-working bee. It's tough on the bee, having to eat that synthetic man-made "honey." But what can the little bee do about it? Bees don't have a vote on election day and they don't have a labor union. So the busy little bees keep right on making genuine honey and their money-making owners keep right on buying genuine Cadillacs.

Being a newspaper editor isn't a bed of roses, but aren't you glad you aren't a bee, even though Gov. Anderson has proclaimed this Bee Week in Nebraska?

Best wishes.

Two Senators Say They'll Fight Tax Cut Before Surplus

By JACK BELL
WASHINGTON (AP)—Sens. Byrd (D-Va.) and Williams (R-Del.) said Sunday they will oppose any move in the next session of Congress to cut taxes until there is an actual federal surplus in hand.

But a survey by legislative experts indicated any prediction by President Eisenhower that the budget will be balanced in the fiscal year beginning next July 1 will signal a headlong rush by Congress to reduce individual income taxes.

Staff members of the Senate House Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation are said to have reached the conclusion that it will be possible for the President to forecast a budget balancing.

Because his administration has made this one of its chief goals, the Congressional experts think the President will make such a prediction.

Hard To Stop
Once the goal is officially proclaimed in sight, Congressional leaders concede they would have difficulty in stopping an immediate tax cut, especially because of the imminence of presidential and Congressional elections.

Byrd and Williams made it clear in separate interviews, however, that they will fight the tide.

Byrd, who heads the tax-handling Senate Finance Committee, contended that any tax cut made effective in the calendar year of 1956 would prevent actual balancing of the budget and eliminate the prospect of paying something on the federal debt.

"What's the matter with starting to pay something on the debt?" he asked. "If we have a surplus, it ought to go to pay off some of the tremendous amount the government owes rather than be returned in the form of a tax reduction."

Williams, a member of the Finance Committee, said he is "not going to vote to cut taxes on borrowed money."

"When there is a surplus actually on hand, I will be for a tax cut and not before," he said.

STAN DELAPLANE'S POSTCARD

IATA which is the international association of airlines has been meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria and trying to keep pace with the jet age. It takes some fancy footwork. Man's mind tends to hang onto the old set of rules while the drawing board is ripping off new designs.

The IATA people have been discussing what will happen when they get jet airliners. Also what about the coming Douglas DC-7C—the "Seven Seas." And Lockheed's long range answer, the "Super Duper" Constellation.

The Constellation illustrates what I mean. Here comes a magnificent airplane. But the best title they can think up for it has a Disney-like comedy quality.

Well, aside from that, I rode the Super-G Constellation from Los Angeles to New York the other day. A plush 8-hour flight non-stop.

The airlines are having a terrible time trying to think up new ways to make the first-class flight worth the price differential. Up in the forward cabin were a number of passengers flying happily in the same time, behind the same pilot, at $80 tourist fares.

Back aft in the $130 seats, the first-class passengers were coated with champagne and attention. However, it is quite a price to pay for 8 hours. And the airlines are not quite sure what to do about it.

On United's DC-7 flight to Honolulu, they roll out an actual red carpet to the boarding ramp. Canned music fills the plane and there is champagne, free plastic sun glasses and cocktails.

However, the price difference between this and tourist is about $70. I don't really know what an airline can do to make flying worth $9 an hour.

In the midst of this, the airline stewardesses and pilots have come out against serving liquor on planes. A Massachusetts congressman threatens to legislate against it. I asked an airline official about it the other day.

"We think it's a squeeze by the stewardesses' union out of Chicago," she said. "They've been fighting to get a third stewardess on all planes that serve liquor."

"Once they got it rolling, a lot of prohibition groups jumped on the band wagon and wrote their congressmen. Actually, we've only tabbed some 70 letters of complaint and most of them sound organized."

A United stewardess on the Honolulu plane recently gave me such a lecture on the evils of high altitude drinking that I was nearly ready to sign the pledge.

"Why?" I said.

"We object because we don't want to be classed as bar maids," she said. "Besides, it's bad for you."

Well, looking this clear-eyed child over carefully, I could see that she had not reached the age of reason. When a dry martini is a great solace. There was no arguing with her until she grew up and had a few problems.

As a matter of fact, the airlines already dictate the drinking habits of their passengers. I don't know just how they figured it out. But TWA serves cocktails before lunch while United whacks you with champagne early and cocktails in the afternoon.

I don't know what American does. Pan American puts a downstairs bar in their Boeing double-deckers and their Mexican affiliate works you over with tequila cocktails.

The American lines with international runs claim they have to do it. That the competition of foreign lines would kill them. SAS, Sabena, KLM, BOAC all serve liquors and wines endlessly. And Air France would not fly without an expensive wine list.

An airline pilot friend of mine told me even the Air France pilots get wine with their meals aloft. But that may be just a story. I do know though that a nervous friend of mine was flying in Mexico when the stewardess suggested she bring him a bottle of beer.

"It will quiet your nerves," she said. As an afterthought, she added: "The pilot is having one now."

Bethany Group Asks Removal Of 66th Islands

The Bethany Lions Club has petitioned the City Council to approve the removal of the center islands in 66th from Starr to X.

Last year, the islands in 66th from X to Garland were narrowed down to a small concrete strip just wide enough to accommodate street light posts.

Referring to that project, Eugene L. Cottier of the Lions Club wrote the City Council, "We are very glad we could see eye to eye on the danger that existed and the improvement the removal of these islands would make. However, the job is not completed."

The removal of the islands from X to Garland was described by Cottier as "the best thing that has happened to Bethany in 50 years."

In view of the extensive building in 66th and Vine area and out to 84th, wrote Cottier, it is time to remove the rest of the islands and allow traffic to go through 66th street freely.

Mayor Clark Jeary said the proposal would be considered by the Council along with other street improvement projects.

Tecumseh Hospital Set To Close Nov. 1

... Emergency Meeting Called

TECUMSEH, Neb.—Mrs. Walter Kiechel and a group of other Tecumseh residents have called a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday to consider the problem the community faces with its hospital scheduled to close Nov. 1.

Dr. J. A. Lanspa, operator of the hospital nearly 25 years, has taken a position in a Veterans Hospital in Roseburg, Ore.

Dr. John C. Schultz, who joined the hospital staff here more than a year ago, said he plans to open an office in Tecumseh.

He is the only active physician in the county.

Dr. Lanspa's wife said in recent years Dr. Lanspa had tried unsuccessfully to dispose of the hospital property so that its continued operation would be assured.

The Monday meeting will be held in the east basement room of the community building.

Browne, Jr., and also will visit Mrs. Grainger's mother, Mrs. C. F. Ladd, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Woods.

AND also back in town today will be Mr. and Mrs. William W. McDermet who have been spending a long Wednesday-to-Monday week-end at their cabin in the Ozarks.

SOMEONE told us that Miss Ruth Ann Scott—a November bride-elect, is in Arizona at the moment—attending the graduation ceremonies at Williams Air Force Base—You may have guessed that her fiancé, James Whiteside, is a member of the graduating class.

The marriage of Miss Scott to Mr. Whiteside will be solemnized on Friday, Nov. 4.

HEARD, too, that Mrs. Stanley Maly will be returning home early this week from Kansas City where she has been spending the week-end.

SOMEONE told us that at the Costume Ball, for which Mr. and Mrs. Milton F. Petersen Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Petersen II, were hosts and hostesses on Friday evening at the Omaha Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Agee won the prize for costuming—Mrs. Agee went to the ball as "Mrs. Kellogg," complete with a chihuahua and its jeweled necklace. Mr. Agee was Mrs. Kellogg's chauffeur.

Sunday Evening Bride

MRS. JOHN STEWART HOLMES

Three hundred invitations were issued for the wedding of Miss Janice Rae Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Street, and John Stewart Holmes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milford M. Coons, which took place on Sunday evening, Oct. 30, at the First Methodist Church. Arrangements of pink gladioli and chrysanthemums, against a screen of greenery, formed the background for the 8 o'clock ceremony which was solemnized by the Rev. Carl M. Davidson. Mrs. M. T. Smith, organist, played the wedding music and also accompanied Lowell Hagen, the vocal soloist.

Wearing identically styled frocks of taffeta, the attendants were Miss Dixie Ivory, the maid of honor, who was in the Copenhagen blue shade; Miss Sharon Albury, the bridesmaid, and Miss Marlene Street, who was her sister's junior bridesmaid, both in iridescent ruby taffeta. The fitted bodices, fashioned with shoulder-wide necklines that slipped into brief, fan-pleated sleeves, narrowed to small waists beneath which the waltz-length skirts flared into extreme bouffancy over net petticoats. Their hair bandeaux reflected the tones of their frocks, and each carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and bouvardia. Gay Hagen was the flower girl, and the ring-bearer was David Coons.

Dale C. Holmes of Grand Island served Mr. Holmes as best man, and seating the guests were Allan Holbert, Allen Overcash and Bert Ogden.

A gown of imported lace and tulle over satin was chosen by the bride for her wedding. The V neckline of the sculptured, long sleeved bodice was contoured with re-embroidered scallops of the lace, and the scalloped motif was repeated in the side panniers of lace that drifted over the voluminous tulle skirt. A tiara of seed pearls held to the head her waist-length veil of illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of shattered fujii chrysanthemums and stephanotis, centered with a brown orchid.

Following the reception, held in the church parlors, Mr. Holmes and his bride left for a honeymoon trip to the Pacific northwest after which they will go to Long Beach, Calif., where they will reside and where Mr. Holmes will attend college. For traveling Mrs. Holmes wore a blue tweed suit with dark brown accessories.

Restaurants To Hit Extremes In 20 Years, Expert Says

American restaurants during the next 20 years will go to two extremes, according to Matthew Bernatsky, director of the University of Denver hotel and restaurant management school.

Bernatsky was one of the speakers Sunday during the annual convention of the Nebraska Restaurant Association being held through Monday in Lincoln.

Approximately 200 persons were registered Sunday, but a total of 500 are expected to attend during the two days.

One type, as seen by Bernatsky, will become more commercialized, highly specialized in the mass production of food and speedy service.

The other, the "fine" restaurant will become even more luxurious in food preparation and catering. The "fine restaurant" may well become sort of a "public club," even to include swimming pools, golf links, tennis courts and a children's playground, Bernatsky believes.

Lunch Bucket Disappears
"Americans have more and more leisure time, and this type of restaurant will cater to those with the leisure and capacity to enjoy good food."

The lunch bucket has almost disappeared from the American scene. Schools, business firms, industry, and others have their cafeterias.

Banks, insurance firms, and others are installing cafeterias and some sort of a lunch program is fast becoming an employee benefit, Bernatsky explained.

Belonging to the old school of chefs, the Hungarian-born Bernatsky believes the finest food preparation must begin with the fresh and natural product.

However, he sees more and more use of pre-cut and "pre-prepared" and frozen products being used in restaurants who cannot do otherwise in the face of rising costs.

Likewise, food preparation and food service will become more mechanized, including conveyor belts to carry dishes between the kitchens and the dining room.

To attract qualified personnel in the highly mechanized restaurant, titles may be changed: "The chef may become a food production manager; a waitress will become a hostess, and the dishwasher, now in charge of complicated equipment, may be known as a sanitary engineer."

Other speakers included H. L. Wertz, a restaurant consultant from Baltimore, Md., on "How to protect profits and cut losses," and Eugene G. Laughery, manager of the Coffee Brewing Institute, New York City, on "How to build a better business with coffee."

The Association's evening program included dancing and a floor show.

Monday, the Association will hear more speakers, hold a business meeting and election of officers, and windup with a banquet at which Marion W. Isbell, national president, will be the principal speaker.

Five Bases Of Lutheran Church Described At SE Nebraska Rally

The stand of the Lutheran church was stated by the Rev. Dr. John F. Streng, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church of Beatrice, at a mass gathering of Lutherans from southeast Nebraska at First Lutheran Church in Lincoln.

The meeting was held in observance of Reformation Day.

The five points emphasized by the Rev. Dr. Streng were that the Lutheran church is founded on Jesus Christ; it speaks with authority; its faith in the Triune God masters frustration and fear; it demands thorough repentance, revival and recommitment, and it is not afraid of the future.

"Beware of the glamorous gods clamoring for world recognition," the Rev. Mr. Streng said in illustrating the first foundation of the church. He said gods of Communism, Catholicism and statism are trying to gain the allegiance of mankind.

"Time-honored customs, cultures and characteristics are crumbling. Only God can stop the March of Time. The rise of colonial nations and their drastic demands of equality before the law forces complacent world powers into new decisions," he said. "Let the Church wipe the sweat of its brow and realign her enormous man-power into mass maneuvers of disciplining nations. That is her calling."

The Rev. Dr. Streng said that "Luther's spiritual children must still give account of the faith once delivered to the saints." He said that the Lutheran church faces a challenge in the fact that 53 per cent of Nebraska's population is "totally unchurched." He added, "The living Bible has to combat open opposition and incredible ignorance both in the machine-minded metropolis and the conservation-conscious countryside."

Showing of the movie, "Martin Luther," and other special services are planned in Lutheran churches this week.

Pennsylvania Farmer Defies Federal Acreage Fine And 'Blasted Forms'

OIL CITY, Pa. (AP)—Farmer John Harmon says nobody's going to tell him how to run his acres — not even the government.

But it's going to cost him $404.28 to have his say.

Harmon's in the dairy farm business in this northwestern Pennsylvania community. And—here's his gripe—he raises some wheat to feed the cattle and improve his pastures.

'Blasted Forms'

John's trouble started last year. The government—with its "blasted forms . . . and all kinds of red tape," as he puts it—told him his wheat acreage allowance was nine acres.

Harmon put in wheat on 24 acres. The Venango County Agricultural Stabilization and Soil Conservation Committee sent two of its members around to talk to him. As one of them said:

"The law's not popular up around here, but the law's the law."

Not Having Any

Harmon wasn't having any.

Wesleyan Ranks As Pace-Setter For High Degrees

Nebraska Wesleyan University continues to rank as a pace-setting institution in the training of natural scientists, Chancellor A. Leland Forrest reported Monday.

Dr. Forrest's observations are based on information contained in a new monograph entitled, "Baccalaureate Origins of Science Doctorates Awarded in the United States, 1936-1950."

In an earlier survey covering the years 1924-34, a research team determined that Nebraska Wesleyan ranked ninth in the nation in the production of natural scientists—the member going on to an earned Ph.D. degree in this area in proportion to enrollment.

The latest study covering a twenty-year span, does not deal in percentages nor rank, but shows that 28 additional Wesleyan graduates in the natural sciences have earned the Ph. D. in the new study.

Dr. Forrest pointed out "two noteworthy conclusions" from the recent study:

1. Although Nebraska Wesleyan has continued to hold its own, many other schools listed in the top ten in the earlier survey have shown a decrease in Ph. D. candidates in the natural sciences in the past 20 years.
2. The Liberal Arts colleges continue to rank high in the production of natural scientists.

The committee, duty-bound, reported him to state headquarters, which passed the case on to Washington, where it was decided he owed $357.28 in penalties. The U.S. attorney's office in Pittsburgh added $47 in costs, and sent Harmon a bill for the total.

Harmon said he wouldn't pay. So the U.S. attorney sent him a note saying that if he didn't pay, his farm could be sold to raise the amount.

Then the government sat back and waited. So did Harmon. And that's about how it all stands now.

An Impasse

The government doesn't want to sell the farm, and Harmon doesn't want to pay the penalties on the wheat.

Asked if he was worried about the situation, Harmon replied: "I'm not worried because I haven't time to be. I'm just going to go on farming. I can't see as if I've done anything wrong. I don't see the sense of fighting the U.S. government which I'm one of."

The wife of the 46-year-old farmer backed him up.

"We think this thing is worth fighting for. If you can't afford to buy wheat for the cattle, you raise it yourself. That's what a farm is for. He ought to be able to run his own farm."

Probably Give In

But, Mrs. Harmon admits, in the end they'll probably have to give in.

Meanwhile, neighbors of the Harmon—two who have a family of nine girls and three boys to help out on the farm—are circulating petitions to be presented to Sens. Edward Martin and James H. Duff, and to Rep. Leon H. Gavin, all Republican members of Congress from Pennsylvania.

The petitions point out that Harmon didn't ask for subsidy prices on his wheat. Nearly 250 signatures have been obtained so far.

Harmon says of the subsidies: "I have never had any part of subsidy. I have made my own way. I'll be darned if I think this allotment and subsidy business is right or American. I love my own ideas about American rights . . . It sometimes makes me awful hopping mad, and at other times, it just takes the heart out of you. It's like building a scaffold to hang yourself."

UP-So. Pac. Streamliners Travel Milwaukee Tracks

CHICAGO (AP)—The Union Pacific-Southern Pacific streamliners between Chicago and the West traveled the Milwaukee Road's tracks between Chicago and Omaha today, with one exception.

It marked the end of a joint operation dating back to 1889 under which the fast passenger trains formerly used Chicago and Northwestern tracks on the Chicago-Omaha leg of the route to Denver and West Coast points.

Under the new routing, the UP's Challenger to Los Angeles will be combined with the Milwaukee's Midwest Hiawatha between Chicago and the Manila, Iowa, junction point with the Hiawatha service to Sioux Falls, S. D.

The westbound Challenger-Midwest Hiawatha left from Chicago's Union Station on the Milwaukee line today, but the inbound Challenger traveled Northwestern tracks to the Northwestern station for the last time.

Today's arrivals and departures of other streamliners—the City of Denver, City of Portland, City of San Francisco and City of Los Angeles—were on Milwaukee tracks.

Don Faurot Under Fire

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Post-Dispatch said Sunday petitions seeking the ouster of Don Faurot as football coach at the University of Missouri are being circulated in the state.

The newspaper said the petitions, bearing no individual's name, reportedly originated with alumni of the school in Kansas City and St. Joseph in the western half of Missouri and have reached St. Louis.

Clair (Butch) Houston, fullback on Faurot's first Missouri team in 1935 and now an elementary school principal here, was quoted as saying he had been asked as an alumnus to seek signatures favoring Faurot's removal as coach.

"I threw it (the petition) away," Houston was quoted as saying, "because in my opinion Don has done too much for the Missouri athletic program to receive such treatment."

The Missouri team Saturday defeated Colorado for its first win in seven games this year. The 53-year-old Faurot, creator of the split-T formation, also is athletic director at the school in Columbia.

Under Faurot, Missouri has won 97 games, lost 71 and tied 7. The Tigers have won three conference championships and played in five post-season bowl games.

Tag-Team Go Mat Feature

A midweek tag-team match, pitting Tiny Tim and Tito Infante against midweek champion Sky Low Low and Ivan the Terrible, is the special event at the Fairgrounds rattle Monday night.

The feature match is a battle between roughie Hans Schmidt and Kansas City's Bob Orton.

Sky Low Low is to midweek wrestlers what Schmidt represents to the heavyweights: a mighty unpopular fellow to crawl into the ring with.

Sky is a rushing fighter and likes to mix it up throughout the match.

Don Leo Jonathan and Angello Poffo are matched in a semi-final scrap. Jonathan, known as the fuzzy-cheeked wonder, is a big and speedy grappler who knows his way around the mat.

But Poffo, an Italian wrestler, is a hustler in the ring himself, as he demonstrated here last week.

Don Leo's weight advantage will help the Salt Lake City wrestler, but Poffo likes 'em big and rough.

Browns Take Over First Place

Cardinals Beaten In Mud, Rain 26-20

CHICAGO (AP) — The Cleveland Browns squeezed by the Chicago Cardinals in mud and rain 26-20 Sunday, to grab first place in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League.

The triumph, coupled with Pittsburgh's loss to Philadelphia, left the Browns on top with a 5-1 record.

Building up a 21-6 halftime lead, the Browns were unable to cross the Cardinal goal line in the second and inches to go on their own 26. The offensive team wanted to try for it but a punt was ordered.

Dave Mann punted high and deep to the Brown 40 where Paul took the ball and raced 60 yards untouched for the touchdown. Groza converted and the Browns led 14-6.

With less than two minutes left in the half, Paul intercepted one of Lamar McHan's passes and returned 18 yards to the Cardinals 38. Graham hit Darrell Brewster with a 36-yard pass and two plays later Otto tossed a 4-yard touchdown pass to Ray Renfro. Groza half, but held off the Chicagoans in a final series of desperation passes.

Cleveland's Don Paul broke the game wide open in the second quarter when he returned a punt 60 yards for a touchdown and moments later intercepted a pass which led to Cleveland's third score.

Held to a pair of field goals in the first half, the Cardinals struck for a touchdown in each of the final quarters but never could overcome Cleveland's hefty first-half edge.

Cleveland scored five points in third period on a safety and a field goal and they proved to be just so much insurance.

Temper flared twice in the game resulting in the banishment of Olie Matson and Harry Thompson of the Cardinals and Herschel Forester and Bob Cain of Cleveland.

It might have been a different story had the Cardinals elected to gamble in the second quarter. Moving well on the ground, the Cards were faced with a fourth stored quickly although several of the players were rolling on the ground wrestling.

The two teams were penalized a total of 172 yards, 96 yards against the Eagles and 87 against the Steelers.

Tossed out of the game were Bob Gaona, 245-pound tackle from Wake Forest and Leon Campbell, former Arkansas halfback, both of the Steelers, and Chuck Bednarik of the Eagles.

breaking the game wide open in the third period when they smashed over for three touchdowns.

In addition to Patton's spectacular scoring runs, Chuck Conerly passed for two touchdowns, one of them to Alex Webster, who also scored on a 52-yard gallop. Kyle Rote scored the other Giant touchdown, on a long pass from Conerly.

Vic Janowicz carried over in lone Washington touchdown, scoring on a 48-yard romp. The Redskins back also kicked the extra point to raise his league-leading scoring total to 49 points.

The Redskins, oddly enough, had much the better of the statistics. They picked up 17 first downs to 12 for the winners and outgained them 405 yards to 273.

With Eddie LeBaron throwing all but one of the 43 passes, the Redskins picked up 213 yards in the air but the Washington quarterback had four of his passes intercepted, one of which led directly to a Giant touchdown. The New Yorkers also capitalized on a Washington fumble to score one of their three third-period touchdowns.

But Next Three Weeks' Scores Can Confuse 'Little Six' Race

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

The next three weeks could throw the Little Six football race into utter confusion.

This is based on the fact that the six teams are of near-equal caliber, all with the chance to beat the others.

There's no question but what the Nebraska Cornhuskers are in the driver's seat for the second-place race with a 3-0 record. But a Husker slip or two, plus other factors could toss the battle into a deadlock.

It's possible for a two-way or three-way tie for second and it's still possible for Iowa State to walk off with the No. 2 spot.

Of course, Oklahoma is granted the title—as always—and any speculation on the finish is based on the Sooners going undefeated.

As far as Nebraska is concerned, a victory over Iowa State this week would insure a tie for second place. And if the Huskers beat Colorado a week later they will play Oklahoma for the championship, with the runner-up spot assured.

Here's the way the race stacks up and the possibilities:

Oklahoma—Now 3-0, with Missouri, Iowa State and Nebraska left. It can be assumed that Sooners will finish 6-0 once again.

Nebraska—Now 3-0, with Iowa State, Colorado and Oklahoma left. Two wins would insure second place. One win could insure tie. Three losses could also result in tie for second.

Colorado—Now 2-2, with Nebraska and Iowa State left. Two wins would insure tie with Nebraska, if Huskers beat Iowa State. Win over Nebraska and loss to Iowa State would insure tie if Nebraska loses all three remaining games.

Missouri—Now 1-2, with Oklahoma, Kansas State and Kansas left. Wins over K-State and Kansas would make it 3-3, with chance to tie Nebraska—if Huskers lose last three—and Colorado—if Buffs split.

Kansas State—Now 1-3, with Kansas and Missouri. Two wins would toss Wildcats into the 3-3 bracket, with possibility of tying Nebraska or Colorado.

Iowa State—Now 1-1-1, with Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma. Two wins could give Cyclones second place with 3-2-1, if Colorado and Oklahoma also beat Nebraska. One more Nebraska win or two Colorado wins would eliminate Iowa State.

Kansas—Now 0-3-1, with Kansas State and Missouri. No chance.

Last week's action pinpointed clearly the poor caliber of the Little Six.

Missouri, which hadn't won a game, bounced Colorado—expected to be Oklahoma's only test—20-12, adding insult to injury out Boulder way.

But the Cornhuskers managed to eke out a victory over improving—but still sub-par Kansas—19-14. It was a case of the Huskers getting a good margin and fighting off the score, however, Nebraska had a decisive edge in the statistics: First downs—NU 22, KU 15; Rushing—NU 273, KU 212; Passing—NU 65, KU 38; Net yards—NU 438, KU 250; Plays—NU 76, KU 50.

On the strength of Nebraska's improving offense, the Huskers should be favored over Iowa State and Colorado, which apparently is one of the year's prize flogs.

Elsewhere, Oklahoma is expected to roll on against Missouri, while Kansas State and Kansas will hold their annual intra-state clash at Lawrence. The Wildcats fell to the Sooners, 40-7.

Colorado, after the shock of losing to the Tigers, is probably thankful for a week's respite from the Little Six wars. The Buffs host Utah at Boulder.

In the conference scoring race, Oklahoma has three of the top four point-getters. Tommy McDonald picked up his 10th TD against Missouri to maintain his commanding lead with 60 points.

Touring Lawmakers Find Russians Hungry For U.S. Facts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eleven lawmakers, back from visits to Russia, say the Soviet people are hungry for facts about the United States.

They say the Russians aren't nearly as well off as Americans—and harbor some distorted ideas about life in this country. But they also report no evidence of an impending economic crack-up. Several found Ivan Q. Public's economic status improving. None found him straining to overthrow his Kremlin rulers.

The 11 senators and representatives gave their impressions of Soviet life to the Washington Star.

Like Idea
Generally, they applauded the interchange of visitors between this country and Russia. But they insisted on more concrete demonstrations of good will before accepting the current smile on the face of Soviet policy as genuine.

Their experiences and reactions varied. Sen. Frear (D-Del) came away feeling, "The Soviet economy is stronger than I had believed. Rep. Robison (R-Ky) said that before seeing the Soviet Union for himself he "was not fully aware of its weakness."

Sen. Ellender (D-La) was among those who found the Russians intensely curious about America. Frear reported "no fear or wariness about talking to foreigners," but Reps. Holt (R-Calif) and Rhodes (R-Ariz) found the Soviets reluctant to talk in front of officials escorting the Americans.

Rep. Hillings (R-Calif) was "surprised to note the sense of humor and pleasantness exhibited by the individual Russians." Rep. Cooley (D-NC), on the other hand, portrayed them as "sad and unhappy."

No Starving
Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) described conditions as austere but said he "found no starving multitudes." Sen. Young (R-ND) declared that to say Russia faces a food crisis "overstates the case."

Sen. Dworshak (R-Idaho) found Russia's apparent desire to exchange visitors "understandable when it is revealed that economic conditions in Russia are not acute." Sen. Hennings (D-Mo) expressed belief there is a "great deal more relaxation throughout the Soviet Union" than in the days of Stalin.

Some of their impressions:
Ellender — Without exception I found the ordinary Russian citizen hungry for facts about the United States. . . I came out of the U.S.S.R. with the feeling that it would not require much effort on our part to convince the vast majority of Russians that our way of life is far superior to theirs. . .

Decided Change
Young — I came back . . . convinced that for the time being, at least, there is a decided change in attitude on the part of the ruling class. . . The Russians are more confident now. . . They lack a great deal of refinement in living, but they have the necessities. . .

Frear — The Red chiefs indicate that the Soviet Union is quite self-sufficient but would favor East-West trade. They demonstrate unflinching belief in Lenin's type of communism and whatever their secret reaction may be, the average Russian citizen goes along or at least shows no sign of revolt. . .

Kefauver — Their "smiles" policy . . . is as calculating and precise as their cold war planning. . . Restrictions against religion have been relaxed, but powerful sanctions still exist to keep all but the aged from attending church. Resistance to the regime seems strongest among the small farmers, but the Soviet faces no crisis in agricultural supply, nor does it appear likely that any revolt will occur. . .

Dworshak — General conditions are not nearly as good as in this country, but evidence was convincing that their economic status is being improved. . .

Serious Attitude
Hennings — Since I understand there is a law in the U.S.S.R. which prohibits Russians from telling foreigners anything not strictly in the course of business, we found even the guides and interpreters assigned to us quite uncommunicative. I was also impressed by the intensely serious and earnest attitude of the men and women as they go about their work. . .

Cooley — In Leningrad the atmosphere was that of a prison camp. . . I did not see a smile on the face of a single Russian. . . The atmosphere of Moscow is different. . . In Moscow the Russians have the greatest agricultural fair in all the world. . . But the Russian system of farming, just as its system of government, is depressing and deplorable. . .

Few Nebraskans Apply For $2,300 Law Scholarship

Few Nebraskans have applied for the $2,300 a year scholarships to the law college of New York University, according to Robert G. Simmons, chief justice of the Supreme Court and chairman of the state selection committee.

Nebraska college and university seniors interested in attending law school next year can apply for the Root-Tilden scholarships through Dean Russell D. Niles of the New York law college.

Two scholarships are awarded each year in each of the 10 Federal judicial districts. They are renewable for two more years on a basis of scholarship. Applicants must be unmarried and between 20 and 28 years of age.

In the four years the scholarships have been available two from Nebraska have been recipients. They are Gerald E. Matzke of Lincoln and Donald T. Fox, Jr., Omaha.

Other members of the selection committee are Wilber Aten, president of the State Bar Association, and Arch Jarrell, editor of the Grand Island Independent.

Troubled Plane Drops Hydrogen Gas Cylinders

KOBE, Japan (AP)—A U.S. C-119 Flying Boxcar had to jettison cylinders of inflammable hydrogen gas over Japan after it developed engine trouble. The plane landed safely.

Kyodo news service said one exploding cylinder damaged a farmer's house and scorched a wide area of farmland near Kakogawa.

An Air Force spokesman had no information on what use was being made of the gas. It could be for welding.

When someone's counting on you...
you can count on life insurance

Have you ever noticed how some older persons seem to have a way of smiling that's all their own? Sometimes it's almost a twinkle . . . sometimes simply an expression that says they're at peace with the world.

Your own later years can be happier because you own life insurance. Hundreds of thousands of older persons are now enjoying their retirement because of their life insurance and annuities. Last year, annuities alone provided more than $400 million to the American people. And in fact, more than half of all life insurance benefits now go to the policyholders themselves.

This is one of the reasons why you can count on life insurance . . . and why it is America's most widely used form of thrift.

You may be able to arrange your present life insurance to provide a regular income when you retire. The best person to show you how this can be done is your own life insurance agent.

You'll also find helpful suggestions on retirement, family protection and other uses of life insurance in the new booklet, Your Life Insurance—and How to Use It. Your free copy will be mailed promptly; simply send your name and address on a postcard to Dept. B.

Soviets Claim Greatest Gain in History

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government said Sunday Russia will harvest the biggest grain crop in its history this year. No figures were given in the forecast.

This first official indication of success in the government's drive to increase farm output came in a lead editorial in Soviet Agriculture, the official newspaper of the Agriculture Ministry.

"In spite of drought conditions in certain Eastern oblasts (regions), considerably more grain has been gathered in the country as a whole than in past years," the editorial said.

Not Too Great
Western experts here, however, believe the harvest will not greatly exceed last year's crop. They said any increase could be attributed to the jump this year of nearly 44 million acres in the nation's tilled acreage.

The editorial in Soviet Agriculture said the final figures on this year's production have not yet been tallied up. They apparently will not be published for at least a week.

Western experts have been puzzled by the absence of such figures, which usually are put out in mid-October.

Not Summed Up
The definitive results have not yet been summed up," the editorial said, "but even now it can confidently be said the present year will occupy a prominent place in the history of the Soviet people's struggle to increase the output of grain and animal husbandry products."

This optimistic declaration coincided with front-paging by Pravda and other newspapers of the award of another Order of Lenin to Andrei A. Andreyev, wartime commissar of agriculture who lost high party and government posts in 1950 after drawing fire for his policy of permitting decentralization.

Peron Says He Will Stay In Paraguay

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Meridional News Agency today quoted ousted Argentine dictator Juan Peron as saying, "I do not intend to leave this hospitable country (Paraguay) which I chose for my exile."

The dispatch — datelined Sao Paulo, Brazil — said reporter Benedito Ribeiro and a photographer spent two hours with Peron at the Villaria home in Paraguay where Peron is living in exile.

Asked about his removal from Asuncion to Villaria, Peron was quoted as saying:

"When I came to Paraguay, under guarantees of the right of asylum granted a chief of state, I promised not to use this hospitality of Paraguay to deal with subjects connected with Argentine politics. And while I remain here my conduct will not be different."

Peron has a companion Maj. Villamajor, who is in charge of his safety.

"Maj. Villamajor informed us that Peron is not receiving even close friends in order to avoid any political exploration."

Vets Affairs, Co. Service Meet Begins

The ninth annual conference of the Department of Veterans Affairs and Nebraska County Service Officers Association got underway Sunday in Lincoln with more than 60 attending.

Registration is expected to reach 90 Monday and Tuesday with sessions on those days being held in the west senate chamber of the State Capitol.

The Sunday session, held at the Legionnaire Club, included panel discussion on administration of veterans' aid funds, the relationship of the County Service Officer to the Post Service Officer, and the employment of veterans.

Monday's highlights include election of new officers for the service officers association and a banquet. State Director Louis R. Eby said the convention's highlight will be Tuesday with presentation of the program on rehabilitation and services to the chronically-ill and disabled veteran.

Speakers will include Florence Bruggier, chief social worker, Lincoln Veterans Hospital; Mayme Stukel, state director of public welfare, and Louis Moody, chief social worker, Norfolk State Hospital.

The conference will wind up with critical evaluation and resume of the veteran program for the chronically and totally disabled.

Minnesota Party Urges Adlai To Run

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Democratic-Farmer-Labor party Sunday urged Adlai Stevenson to become a candidate for president and enter the Minnesota presidential primary election March 20.

A resolution endorsing Stevenson was passed unanimously by a voice vote of the DFL State Central Committee.

"In reply to the committee action, Stevenson said, 'I have said that I would make my intentions regarding the presidential campaign known in November. That still stands.'"

"Therefore, all I can say at this time about the action of the State Central Committee is that I am highly honored and deeply gratified."

A move to urge that Sen. Humphrey's (D-Minn) name be placed before the Democratic national convention was delayed, however, until a later meeting after Humphrey vetoed the idea.

Sudden Fog Fought To San Diegos

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Sudden fog closed in on many Sunday sports fishermen off San Diego and a man and wife perished trying to reach shore in their new 12-foot boat.

Lifeguards said the boat, powered by a seven-horsepower outboard motor, was swamped by breakers.

It and the body of Rufus Nix, 41, an electrician, were washed onto Mission Beach.

The body of Mrs. Marie Nix, 40, was found floating off the Mission Beach amusement center by three other fishermen, as they skirted the breakers in their boat to reach the Mission Bay entrance.

Plant Study

MANHATTAN, Kan. (INS) — Winter rye plants found by chance on a farm near Kansas City are being used by agricultural scientists at Kansas State College seeking a cure for soil-borne wheat mosaic.

The plants showed severe green mosaic symptoms and plants from their seed continued the symptoms when infected in greenhouse laboratories. The seed is being increased so other researchers can have the plants as a host for soil-borne mosaic studies.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. BAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS By Arthur 'Bugs' Baer

Things would be more solid if anese baseball fans think he won the world series.

Suggest they make Casey Stengel our Far Eastern Representative while he is in Japan with the Yank-ees.

Nobody would under stand him enough to get sore, Casey is the only man in the world who talks in fine print.

Here's how good he is. The Jap-

Double Trouble
SALEM, Ore. —Mrs. Margaret Ray drove a car here for 34 years without an accident. Then she had two in the same day. First she had a minor collision with another car on a downtown street. She drove home, then decided she had better report it to police. On the way to the station her car collided with a truck and Mrs. Ray wound up in the hospital, with bruises.

Bugs Baer

What good are those State Department officials anyway? There isn't one who's got a beer or cigar sponsor.

All we need is Casey addressing the United Nations once. But don't give him a blackboard and chalk. It's confusing enough through the ears.

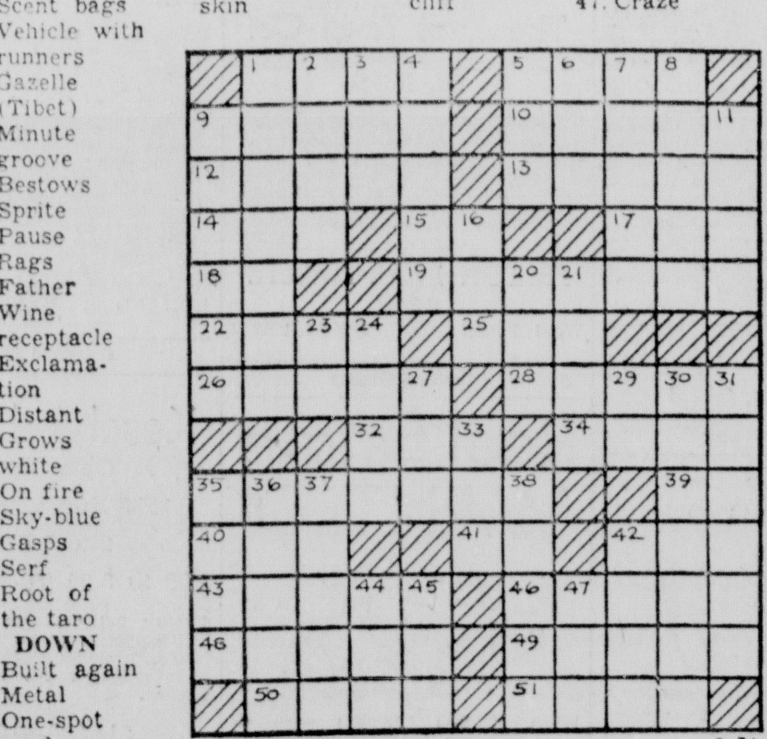

Emotional Outlet

TAMPA, Fla. — Just before starting the Tampa Philharmonic orchestra on Victor Herbert's "Serenade for Strings," guest Conductor Meredith Wilson asked the listeners to write down the emotion or picture stimulated by the music. The answers were widely varied but not so very surprising. Things like: "A Russian Country-side," "A blonde in agony over the desertion of her lover," "A hill in North Georgia," "Freight train at night," "Canoeing down the river with my honey," "Desert oasis," "The workings of an un-sound mind." Also: "Six a.m. bottle (for baby)."
